The Sovereignty Symposium is the foremost legal gathering on Native American law in the world. It was established to provide a forum in which ideas concerning common legal issues regarding Indian law can be exchanged in a scholarly, non-adversarial environment. Over the past thirty years, the Symposium has examined a wide diversity of themes. In conjunction with the Symposium, our scholarly collection of legal and historical writings is presented to all the participants. Legal libraries all over the United States regularly solicit copies of the publication for their collections.

We invite papers on any issue concerning Native American law. Please submit papers no later than May 1, 2018 by email to: kyle.shifflet@oscn.net. Submissions will only be accepted in Word or Word Perfect format by e-mail. The paper should be single-spaced and in footnote form. All citations should conform to the latest Edition of The Bluebook: A Uniform System of Citation.
